The Kühne Stiftung (Foundation), set up by the Kühne family in 1976, has as its sole donor Klaus-Michael Kühne. The foundation's objective is to support training and further education as well as to foster science and research in the fields of logistics and transportation. Furthermore, the foundation supports research in medical science and sponsors humanitarian, charitable and cultural projects. One of the main projects of the Kuehne Foundation is the HELP Initiative which is aimed at one of the greatest challenges in disaster areas and developing countries, namely the transport and storage of urgently needed goods. The expansion of logistics competence in aid organisations, local logistics service providers and government agencies is therefore central to activities.

The National Institute of Transport (NIT) is a Public Higher Learning Institution, established by the NIT Act No. 24. of 1982. Currently the Institute is under the Ministry of Transport. However, its history dates back in 1975, when it was formed for the purpose of the production of manpower for the transport and the allied sectors. The complexity of the transport Industry and the intricacies involved in its management necessitated the introduction of comprehensive training programme for the Sector.
